Inspired By The Courses Of Arizona & California

Inspired by the famous desert courses of Arizona & California, The par 72 international championship Indiana course is the first desert course in Europe and has been built to full USGA specifications and the quality standards of these desert courses, now famous for the quality of golf that they offer. It presents unforgettable views, and golf of such a dramatic nature that it can be said to have taken not only desert golf, but also golf in general in this part of Spain to a new level of excellence.

Its immaculate fairways are set amongst massive rocky outcrops, arroyos and dry rivers. The vivid contrast of the 'desert springs' and the emerald green fairways with the arid landscape of cactus, rock and flowering desert, is stunning at all times of year. The whole golfing vision is framed within a panorama of landmark mountain ranges.

Over 600,000 cacti and other desert plants grow progressively more dense and troubling, the further your shot is off the fairway, culminating in the dreaded "spiked lies", so the course is both demanding and exhilarating, providing a variety of shot making challenges to test the skill level of every player, from the beginner to professional.

Accommodation is in Townhouses and ideally situated yards away from the practice areas, course and clubhouse.

MAKE NEW FRIENDS

Lora takes great pride not only in helping people improve their golf on her holidays, but also in the great camaraderie that her trips are popular for. Lighthearted fun competitions during the trip alongside group coaching. Lora has played Desert Springs and it made a lasting impression, especially the outstanding practice facilities that we have included.
